

"RIPPER" AT LARGE

IN BERLIN, AND HE PICKS LITTLE GIRLS FOR VICTIMS.

LURES CHILDREN FROM HOME

Then Stabs Them With a Sharp Instrument—One of the Three Tots Assaulted is Dead.

Berlin, July 27.—A series of cold-blooded crimes, singularly resembling the "Jack the Ripper" murders, but for the fact that instead of women the victims were little girls, followed one another with remarkable celerity almost in the center of the city, and aroused indignation and excitement.

Within a short space of time the assassin successively enticed three little girls, the oldest 5 years of age, into doorways of houses and stabbed them several times in the abdomen with a sharp instrument. As a result one of the children is dead, another dying and the third is dangerously wounded.

The first knowledge that the crimes had been committed came when an occupant of the house at the corner of Ryke and Belford streets found the body of Margarita Prawitz, aged 4, lying in the doorway, bathed in blood, the bowels protruding and the lower part of the body horribly gashed. This was immediately reported to the police, who were about to investigate the case, when reports came that Hartha Lencase, aged 3, and Elly Kniespel, 5 years old, had been found similarly outraged, but still alive, in Prenzlauer allee and Henselerdorfer street, respectively.

Rumors soon spread throughout the vicinity which magnified the number of victims and the inhabitants of the neighborhood became intensely excited. Mothers sought their children in the streets and made them return indoors in fear that they might meet a similar fate. Crowds gathered about the police station shouting vengeance against the murderer.

In the meantime the two victims who still lived were transported to a hospital. Their condition is extremely precarious. They are not expected to survive the night.

The officials acted quickly in an endeavor to locate the murderer and published an offer of a reward of $1,000 for his capture.

Shortly after the crimes were committed a slip of paper with a death head sketched on it was found on a public seat in the square near the scene. On it was inscribed in a rambling hand: "Away, in five minutes there will be another corpse. There is a child murderer in the neighborhood. Deliver this note to the police. I have killed children in Belfort, Prenzlauer and Henselerdorfer streets."

The note was attached to the seat by means of a sharp single scissors blade and it is assumed that the crimes were committed with the other half of the instrument.

Experts who have examined the note found on the seat have come to the conclusion that it was written by a madman.

BLACK CAP WAS READY

For Negro When He Denounced a Spectator as the Murderer.

Montgomery, Ala., July 27.—In the presence of a large crowd Colvin Coleman, a negro, while on the scaffold to pay the penalty for the murder of J. A. Finley, a white man, accused W. R. Fisher, a saloonkeeper, of having committed the crime.

"W. R. Fisher and a negro named Billie killed Mr. Finley," declared Coleman, just before the black cap was placed over his head, "and I helped to place his body in a carriage. Some day you will find out the truth and will then know I am not guilty."

Fisher was looking at Coleman at the time, but did not create a scene. "I am able to prove an alibi," declared Mr. Fisher, "and I did so when the officers investigated the case at the time of the murder. There is not a man who is not convinced of my innocence."

JURY IN THE HAYWOOD TRIAL

WILL BE CHARGED BY JUDGE SATURDAY MORNING.

Mrs. Steunenberg Appears in Court For the First Time, Accompanied By Her Son.

Boise, Ida., July 26.—The case of the state of Idaho against William D. Haywood, charged with the murder of Frank Steunenberg, a former governor of the state, will rest with judge and jury Friday night.

Clarence Darrow, after speaking for 11 hours, concluded the final plea for Haywood's life at 4:20 p. m., and at 7 o'clock Thursday evening United States Senator Borah opened the closing argument for the prosecution. He will speak for three sessions, or about seven hours.

Judge Fremont Wood will instruct and charge the jury on Saturday morning.

At least 1,000 persons were unable to find seats in the courtroom.

Two hours before the hour set for the third session of the day crowds began to arrive, and within half an hour the doors were closed to all but court officials and newspaper men.

It was an audience composed almost entirely of Boise people gathered to hear the speech of the young man, who, recently elected by the people of Idaho to represent them in the United States senate, has been the assistant counsel for the prosecution in the case against Haywood.

Aside from the unaccustomed crowd in the courtroom and the large number of women present, the scene was much as it has been at each of the sessions during the last 11 weeks.

Mrs. Steunenberg, the widow of the murdered governor, appeared in the courtroom for the first time since the trial opened.

She occupied a seat inside the railing beside her youngest son, Julian.

Gov. Gooding, with a number of the executive staff and a large representation of the state judiciary and bar, were among the audience.

Haywood was surrounded by his counsel and his wife, in her invalid chair, was as usual by his side.

At the prosecution's table when Senator Borah rose to speak were seated two associate counsel, but James H. Hawley, leading counsel for the state, was not in his place, owing to serious illness.

Senator Borah's speech was a sensation. From time to time he turned on counsel for the defense, fierce denunciation pouring from his lips, and at times he brought protests from Richardson and Darrow, but with blazing eyes and hot words he silenced every effort to break the rush of words.

The climax was reached when, in behalf of the state of Idaho, its people, its governor and himself, he disclaimed all intention or desire to give immunity to Orchard.

Finally, his face pale and voice quivering with emotion, the senator raised his arm and said:

If I should ever join in or give approval to immunity to this man I hope the great God may wither my right arm in its socket."

HAYWOOD ACQUITTED

Jury Was Out 21 Hours Before Verdict Was Reached.

Boise, Ida., July 29.—Into the bright sunlight of a beautiful Sabbath morning William D. Haywood, defendant in one of the most noted trials involving conspiracy and murder that the country has ever known, walked a free man, acquitted of the murder of former Gov. Frank Steunenberg.

It was after being out 21 hours that the jury, which at first had been divided eight to four and then seemed deadlocked at ten to two, finally came to an agreement shortly after the first faint streaks of the coming day showed above the giant hills. Events then moved rapidly after that, and at a few moments before 8 o'clock the white envelope handed by the foreman to the judge was torn open and the verdict read.

The probability of a verdict of acquittal in the case of the secretary-treasurer and acknowledged leader of the Western Federation of Miners had been freely predicted, when Judge Fremont Wood read his charge, which was regarded as strongly favoring the defense.

It was also freely predicted that in the event of Haywood's acquittal the state would abandon the prosecution of his associates, Charles H. Moyer, president of the Federation, and Geo. Pettibone, of Denver.

AUTHORITIES CLASH.

NORTH CAROLINA AND UNITED STATES COURTS

THREATEN STAGE OF CONFLICT.

Governor Rejects Peace Offer of the Government—Rate Law Situation Very Serious.

Asheville, N. C., July 25.—The state of North Carolina is now in a practical position of flat defiance of federal authority.

Gov. Glenn refused to consider a peace plan submitted by Assistant Attorney General Sanborn, who came here direct from President Roosevelt. At the same time, Judge Lyon, presiding in Marion, in a term of the superior court, instructed the grand jury to return indictments immediately against the Southern railway for violation of the rate law.

As the law has been declared unconstitutional by United States Circuit Judge Pritchard, the action of Judge Lyon completely ignores the federal court, and opens the way for that overriding of federal authority which will precipitate the long expected crisis.

It is conservative to say that the dry's developments in the railroad controversy bear a more serious aspect than at any time since the agitation began.

The state advocates asserted that the federal court can not escape a violation of the federal statute, which prohibits a federal officer from granting an injunction against a state court.

They say that it is too clear now to admit of any question that what Judge Pritchard has already done amounts to a violation of the federal statute.

Gov. Glenn fanned the flames by asserting in a public statement that to have accepted the Sanford peace plan would have constituted a humiliating surrender to the federal court.

"I shall not consider any offer from the other side," he said, "until the railroad complies with the law."

In other words, the governor insists that the railroad shall comply with a law that a federal judge has already declared unconstitutional before the state enters into any peace conference.

Continuing, the governor declared that the terms laid down by Mr. Sanford amounted to nothing.

"If Judge Pritchard had shown the slightest disposition to recognize the validity of the rate law," continued the governor, "and the right of the state to institute and prosecute cases arising under it in the criminal courts, I would have been entirely satisfied to allow prosecutions to be suspended until the supreme court of the United States could decide."

"I feel, in the present circumstances, that I can not for one moment permit this law of the state, any more than any other law, to be ignored and trampled under foot by the railway company or any one else."

In this frame of mind, anticipating the conflict which is coming between the state and the United States circuit court, the state officials have now prepared a plan of procedure which is designed to overcome any order by the United States court forbidding the enforcement of the railroad rate law, whose penalty section Judge Pritchard says is unconstitutional.

This plan simply looks to forcing the Southern railway into bankruptcy in the event of the supreme court of the United States ultimately declaring that the law is constitutional.

It will be recalled that the Southern secured the decision in the cases of Wood and Wilson, who were convicted in the Asheville, police court on a charge of charging more than 2 1/2 cents a mile and sentenced to imprisonment under the penalty clause of the law.

BALE HOOK IN HAND OF DRAYMAN

CUT SHORT CAREER OF MURDEROUS GAMBLER.

Killed Girl Who Refused Hand and Money, Then Mortally Wounded His Best Friend.

New York, July 24.—Crazed with jealousy of a fancied rival, Frank H. Warner, broken in fortune and reputation, brutally slew Esther Margaret Norlin, a girl of 21 who had refused to marry him and advance him enough money to re-establish himself in business. After shooting the girl Warner tried to kill Albert Spicer and a boy named Keller, who had tried to intercept him in his flight, and three hours later shot and mortally wounded his best friend, John C. Wilson, who was about to comply with his request for a loan of $10.

Warner lay in wait for the girl in front of the haberdashery shop of William C. White, at 3 West Forty-second street, where she was employed and, in full sight of the hundreds of clerks and shop girls on their way to business, shot her through the heart just after she entered the store.

Albert R. Spicer, the man whom Warner suspected of displacing him in the affections of the girl, was in the store when the shot was fired, and as soon as he saw the girl fall sprang to grapple with her assailant.

The crazed man fired a shot point blank at Spicer, but missed and retreated to the street, firing another shot at the boy Keller as he ran. Finding his pursuers gaining on him the man halted with his back to the wall of the old reservoir and fired another shot that scattered the crowd long enough for him to get across the street into the Spalding building. He ran up the stairs to the first landing and paused to reload his revolver, threatening to kill any one who started toward him. Then he calmly walked his way out of the building and mingle with the crowd while half a dozen policemen were looking for him.

Four hours later he appeared in the store of his best friend, John C. Wilson, No. 26 Waverly place, greeted him cordially and asked for a loan of $10.

Wilson turned around to go to his cashier to get the money, but just as he turned, Warner, evidently possessed of the idea that he was about to call the police, fired three shots, one of which struck Wilson in the back and another in the arm, the third going over his head as he fell to the floor mortally wounded.

Warner then calmly walked out of the building before an alarm was raised. Then he started to run after firing once at the men who were pursuing him.

Half way between Waverly place and Washington place Jacob H. Rose, a giant truckman, heard the sharp reports of Warner's revolver within the building, saw the second shot fired and witnessed Warner beating his retreat down Greene street. Without a second's hesitation Rose jumped from his truck and made for Warner as he fled down the street with the mob yelling, "Stop the murderer!" at a safe distance behind him. The truckman overtook the fugitive who raised his weapon and tried to pull the trigger once more, but Rose dealt him a crushing blow across the right side of his forehead with steel bale hook. Down dropped Warner as if he had been shot. The man's skull was fractured, and there was no more fight in him.
